

Lawn Party for Distinguished Visitor.

Woodlawn, the home of Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Dillingham on Beretania avenue, was the scene yesterday afternoon of one of the largest social functions of the summer season, when the Harvard Club held a reception for Dr. and Mrs. Charles W. Dr. and Mrs. Eliot, with Miss Eliot, Mrs. Hosmer, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Dillingham and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Dillingham, received the guests beneath the shade of a huge poinciana blossom. ## Latest Note Paper Fads

To the average American woman of 20 years ago note paper was a piece of clean white paper used to write letters on. When she found that her supply had run out she went, as a rule, to the nearest stationery store, where nine times out of ten she bought the very first box that was shown her. In the large department stores of the larger cities many a woman bought paper simply because it had an attractive box, and was inexpensive. The paper, of course, was seldom good. There were some manufacturers at that time who made very fine paper, and who turned out initialed and monogrammed paper of the finest texture, but there were not so many as there are now.

Today, however, conditions are very different. As a nation we have been rushing ahead these past twenty years, and our private lines have grown accordingly, until now many must have just this size paper for this letter, another size for that missive, a card for this note, and in each case the envelope must match exactly.

The reason for this is readily understood. It is really by the little things of life that a person's character is determined, and bad taste in note-paper speaks just as loudly as does a missing button or an untied shoe lace.

There have always been "latest fashions" in note paper as in everything else, but they are seldom heeded by the finest ladies of our land. For her there are three sizes of fine textured white paper.

The envelopes that go with these papers are in exact proportion. The shape of the flap of the envelope changes continually, so much so that often it is hard to say just what shape is correct. At present the pointed flap is in vogue, says an exchange.

Another fad that has come in recently is the thin lining for the envelope. It is of the thinnest of tissue paper and gray and blue are the leading colors. It gives a smart appearance to the letter and it entirely conceals the writing. As for the decoration of the envelope, that is a matter of taste, though the plain envelope is the best form. If one does use a monogram or a crest it should be placed either on the flap or the upper left-hand corner and should be very small.

MRS. ELLA SEXTON NOTED WRITER IS IN CITY

Among the noted visitors within the gates of Honolulu this week is Mrs. Ella M. Sexton, famous as a short-story writer and author of several books, one of the best known of which is "Stories of California."

This book, which is published by the MacMillan Company, has been hailed by the reviewers of the country as a notable work. It is a blending of history, biography and fiction, which makes it brimful of interest to children and grown persons alike.

Mrs. Sexton has aimed to awaken interest on the part of children of California in the land of their birth and has succeeded admirably. The book has been adopted as a supplementary reader in the schools of California and has pleased the general reader as well.

Arriving in Honolulu on the Sierra, Mrs. Sexton expects to spend three weeks in the Islands. She is deeply interested in the history and folklore of the country, and it is possible she may secure material for a series of stories dealing with Hawaii.

CLEVER DANCER WITH POLLARD CO.

MISS IVY MOORE, whose dancing in ballet "The Woodhugs" is a feature of the Pollard Juvenile Company. She is a sister of Eva Moore, well known here.

The audience that witnessed the performance of "Sergeant Brue" last night enjoyed itself hugely, judging from the applause.

On the opening night there was a slight drag to the play, due, no doubt, to the fact that it was the first presentation and the artists were more or less overcautious and nervous. Last night, however, all the rough edges were smoothed over and everything went with a slap-bang order and a swing that was truly refreshing.

They worked in better unison with the orchestra, and their enunciation seemed better; at least, every line was heard.

During the three acts of the play there are no less than twenty-two musical numbers.

RAYMOND CONTINUES TO MYSTIFY ALL

The Great Raymond continues to mystify his audience with first illusions, jugglery, etc. Raymond is so quick and clean and perfect in his methods that it would not require a very great strain on our credulity to believe that he possesses supernatural powers. Just when we have made up our minds that we have seen his entire repertoire of "Miracles" he brings out another "stirler" and like Tennyson's "Brook" "goes on and on forever" apparently.

For us to even attempt to describe what happens would simply be wasting time. Everything happens. The law of gravity is set at defiance by this modern wizard, water becomes wine, wine becomes water in front of one's very eyes, while beautiful young ladies appear and disappear miraculously.

But the most striking thing about Raymond's show is Raymond himself. Possessing a wonderful personality and stage presence, he holds his audience under a mystic spell whilst performing his tricks with bewildering ease, accompanied by a flow of "water" in French, German, Italian, Portuguese, Spanish, English, etc., all of which languages he speaks with fluency.

The stage settings alone are equal sive, and lend an additional charm to the performance. In fact, everything about the Great Raymond shows "great" and is the Alpha and Omega in the art magic. Go and see for yourselves.
